The GSI Outdoors Glacier Stainless Explorer set is a complete cook system that's portable and lightweight — but grafted from stainless steel, this durable set is anything but a lightweight. Weighing in at 18.6 oz, it's a complete soloist set-up: a 1.1L pot and lid, folding foon (GSI's clever spork upgrade), Glacier Camp Stove, and mesh stuff sack for easy carrying. Big enough for stirring up dinner and boiling water for a big cup of coffee, but with a narrow, space-saving profile. Pumping out up to 11,000 BTU/h, this sturdy cooking set is built to handle the most rugged adventures.

GSI Outdoors GUIDECAST Frying Pan

Cast iron, but make it portable. The GSI Outdoors GUIDECAST product line was created from the need for river and pack guides to reduce the weight of their cookware, but with something that still stood up to an active, adventure-filled lifestyle. The GUIDECAST Frying Pan is a gourmet cast iron pan that weighs 20-40% lighter than traditional cast ironware, without compromising cooking performance. Nitrided surface treatment helps to prevent corrosion, while the polished interior and exterior bottom perform on all cooking surfaces, from a campfire to an induction stove. The entire GUIDECAST product line brings superior craftsmanship that will last for years to come, all with a smaller carbon footprint than traditional cookware.
